40,000 SOVIET TROOPS FLEE BEFORE FINNS

Force Battle Rages as Reds Seek To Protect Retreat of Army.

HELSINKI, Jan. 19.—Stalked by ice-like cold, hunger and Finnish snipers, Soviet Russia's Salla army, before the most successful of the war—was reported today as a fierce battle today at Marjaskari to protect the retreat of 40,000 men toward the Russian border, still 50 miles distant.

Weather was not clear. The main body of Russian troops was engaged in a fierce battle today at Marjaskari, for possession of which fighting is proceeding.

Foreign military observers read this statement a suggestion of major developments in the early stages of the war.

It was in this sector that the Russians drove deepest into Finland, reaching a point only 18 miles from the railroad of Kemijoki, strategic northern center of the Finnish defense.

The sudden retreat, apparently of the Finns, was reported by the Finns as a tactical move.

They had expressed belief that the Russians would at the least dig in for the winter and hold well-fortified lines in their effort to separate northern and southern Finland.

Thus the withdrawal was well under way before the Finns set out in pursuit.

Finland ski patrols were credited with forcing the Russians into the retreat by cutting off Red supply lines.

Temperatures of 50 degrees below zero Fahrenheit were common, and 58 below was recorded at Helsinki.

A Finnish detachment which reported occupation of a Russian camp in the Salla area shortly after the Red army's departure said that the Red army was fleeing in haste, apparently for food, and that the bank was gnawed down trees, probably by horses.

The withdrawal apparently began Sunday, the Finns said.

On the Karelian isthmus, the Red seemed to have immobilized all activities, and at sea the story was the same.

ELECTION HELD BY ATTORNEYS

William K. Davis New President; Judge Young Heads Library Group.

William Kay Davis was elected president of the Marion County Bar association last night at its annual dinner meeting at Hotel Harding. He succeeds Bernard C. Moloney.

Other officers elected last night were: Kenneth A. Robinson, vice president; William R. Martin, secretary-treasurer; and Dr. William A. Alfred, J. D. Williamson, Alfred D. H. M. Mickle, executive committee.

The officers all assumed their duties immediately.

Judge Young Elected

The Marion County Law Library association also organized for the new year. Common Pleas Judge Hector S. Young was elected president and James E. Reed, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Mickle was chosen vice president to succeed Howard F. Guldery and Mr. Guldery was elected a trustee for three years. Felix Reber was named a trustee for one year to fill the unexpired term of Z. P. Davis who has moved from Marion. Robert Kelly is a holdover trustee.

The library association directs the library at the courthouse which is open to the general public. It is financed with parts of fines from municipal, justice of the peace, common pleas and probate courts.

The bar association last night also discussed adoption of new rules for procedure in common pleas court. A committee is working on a final draft which will be submitted to Judge Young.

Discusses Repairs

Also discussed was the possibility of remodeling the common pleas court room, especially the squeaky floors and the rather haphazard chairs for spectators.

One new member of the association, Howard T. Mitchell of Harding Highway West, was introduced. A guest was Attorney Joseph Rinnert of Los Angeles, former Marion man.

The new president of the association, Mr. Davis, has lived in Marion all his life. He was graduated from Harding High school and later from Ohio State university law school in 1930. He has practiced in Marion since admission to the bar in 1930 and now has offices at 138½ East Center street. His home is at 247 East Church street.

Russian Apology Given Norway, Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 19.—Soviet apologies for territorial violations of Sweden and Norway by Russian warplanes gave those countries assurance today that Red fleets had ended.

The apologies from Moscow, pleading accidental trespassing in answer to formal Swedish and Norwegian protests, came while divided counsel left in doubt how Scandinavia would respond to requests for greater aid to Finland and military cooperation by the northern nations.

Allusion to Swedish opinion toward increased support for Finland and gave assurance to a Socialist-proposed northern "defense league," reaction to any deviation from strict neutrality was cold in other quarters here and in Norway. Denmark held out from the issue.

Lake at McKinley Park Flooded for Use of Skaters

McKinley park lake was cleared of snow and flooded yesterday and last night to give a smooth surface for ice skating. It was a cooperative effort with residents of the vicinity, the city department of Commerce, the fire department and Harding and St. Mary's school pupils taking part.

Mayor Smith of West Wall street traveled snow all day and then helped city workers flood the lake. B. E. Bindley, city fireman, directed the work of the pupils.

Flooding started late in the afternoon and was completed about 10 p. m. with the Marion Water Co. furnishing the water.

A tent was built under the bridge, which is closed, at one end to form a shelter for skaters. A leader from the NYA staff assisted in this and other work.

The Salvation Army is continuing plans to create a skating rink at its tennis court on the Grand street school grounds.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is seeking other locations for flooding. On the board committee are Charles C. Barker, chairman, and Ellis C. Barker.

State V. F. W. Meeting To Open Here Saturday

Gov. Bricker Among Speakers in Two-Day Program; Attendance of 800 Expected If Weather Is Favorable.

Preparations for Marion's first big convention in 1940, the mid-winter conference of the Ohio department, Veterans of Foreign Wars on Saturday and Sunday were virtually completed today with announcement of the program for the two-day gathering of veterans, auxiliary members and sons of the V. F. W.

Approximately 800 persons are expected here if the weather is not too severe and if highways remain clear of ice and snow.

Hotel Harding, conference headquarters, the Masonic temple, Eagles hall, Central Junior High school and the Y. M. C. A. will be put to use to accommodate the visitors.

The annual midwinter banquet Saturday night, with Commanders-in-Chief O. N. Brown of Greenboro, N. C., and Governor John W. Bricker sharing the spotlight, will be held at the Masonic temple. The grand military ball afterwards will be held in the Harding ballroom. The ball, which will start at 9, will be open to the public. Semi-formal dress will be worn. Bob McMahon's orchestra will play.

Only one joint session of the men and auxiliary members has been scheduled, for Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Central Junior High school. The speakers will be Commander Brown and Judge Arthur D. of Cleveland Post No. 84, department legislative chairman.

Will Visit Harding Tomb

After the session, which will formally close the conference, there will be a pilgrimage to the Harding tomb where Mr. Brown will place a wreath.

The conference will be in the nature of schools of instruction, particularly for commanders, adjutants, quartermasters, service officers, and membership, employment and publicity chairman.

These schools will be conducted Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning and afternoon, with the idea of helping department, district, council and post officers as well as the rank and file of members to better equip themselves to carry on their work.

Registration will start at 9 a. m. Saturday at Hotel Harding. At 10 the council of administration of the veterans' organization will meet at the hotel and at 11 there will be an auxiliary officers' practice at Central Junior High school.

Luncheon for Officers

At noon the auxiliary members will give a luncheon at the V. F. W. hall on South Main street for department and auxiliary officers, headed by Harold G. Skinner of Toledo, state commander, and Mrs. Cecilia Carnicom of Toledo, state president of the auxiliary.

The council of administration, composed of department and district officers, will meet at 1 p. m. at the hotel and at 2 there will

G. A. HOLLAND FACES CHARGE

Accused of Arson in Connection with Fire at Piqua; Pleads Not Guilty.

Gustav A. Holland, 42, of Piqua, former Marion man and now president and general manager of the Holland Pioneer Mills of Piqua, was arraigned in common pleas court at Troy this morning on a secret indictment charging him with arson in connection with a $100,000 fire that destroyed a competing mill at Piqua last month. The Associated Press reported from Troy.

Mr. Holland was arraigned unexpectedly on an indictment returned by the Miami county grand jury, which reported its finding last Saturday to Judge Paul T. Klapp. However, the arraignment today was the first time the secret indictment was made public.

Holland pleaded not guilty through his attorney, Leo H. Faust of Troy, and was released on $2,000 bond. A hearing date was not immediately set.

Basics of Charge

Prosecuting Attorney Ellis W. Kerr said the indictment against Mr. Holland was based on a confession given by William Dowdy, also indicted on a charge of arson in connection with the mill fire. Dowdy also was arraigned this morning. He pleaded not guilty and was held under $2,000 bonds.

Mr. Holland is accused in the indictment of inducing Dowdy to set fire to the Holland Mills, wholesale feed company at Piqua, of which Mr. Holland formerly was general manager. Mr. Holland, it was reported from Troy, severed his connections with Holland Mills about six months ago and started a similar type of mill at Piqua under the name of the Holland Pioneer Mills. The Holland Mills was destroyed by fire last month.

Prosecutor Kerr said Dowdy had given the confession implicating Mr. Holland to Joseph Clear and Joseph Ross, both assistants to the state fire marshal, Frank Strickland, Piqua police chief, and other Piqua and Miami county authorities. He refused to disclose the details of Dowdy's statement implicating Mr. Holland.

Statement by Attorney

Mr. Holland's attorney, reached by The Star at Piqua today, said the indictment is without any justification and is based only on the statements of Dowdy whom Mr. Holland previously had discharged.

"Mr. Holland when he was manager of the Holland Mills, fired the fire," Mr. Holland stated the Holland Pioneer Mills, Dowdy made repeated efforts to get a job there but was refused by Mr. Holland. The only reason we can figure for his having involved Mr. Holland in his confession is revenge for Mr. Holland having discharged him and later refusing to give him a job. Mr. Holland is innocent and we will prove that he is."

Mr. Holland left Marion a little more than two years ago. He formerly was vice president and secretary of Old Fort Mills, Inc. of Marion and helped found the Marion company. Shortly before leaving here he resigned from the Marion company and later sold all of his interests in it, company officials said.

DOG LICENSE SALE EXTENDED A WEEK

Extra Time Granted Because of Cold Weather.

It may have been an ill wind that brought sub-zero temperatures but it was a lucky blow for city and county dog owners who have not yet obtained 1940 registrations.

Because of the extremely cold weather the license sale will be continued through next week and registrations will be issued without assessment of an added penalty through Saturday, Jan. 27.

The public, particularly persons living in outlying sections, cannot be expected to brave today's weather to come in for the licenses, County Auditor Harry V. Mounts said in announcing the extension.

He warned, however, that after a week from tomorrow any delinquents will be assessed the $1 penalty per tag. Up to today 3,139 had been issued, approximately $50 less than during the same period a year ago.

A total of 5,708 tags were sold last year, indicating that approximately 2,500 dogs are still without 1940 licenses. The county auditor's office will be open from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. tomorrow and every day next week to handle an anticipated last minute rush.

$4,000 FIRE HITS OFFICE OF DOCTOR HERE

Flames Sweep Interior of South State St. Rooms of Dr. Sutherland.

The office of Dr. Thomas H. Sutherland at 214 South State street was gutted by fire this morning, resulting in damage estimated by firemen at approximately $4,000.

Firemen from the Central station battled the flames in sub-zero temperatures from 8:15 until 10:35 and succeeded in confining the fire to the interior.

Fire Chief McFarland said the fire apparently was caused by an overheated chimney which set fire to flooring between the basement and the first floor. The flames then spread through the floor and finally engulfed the entire first floor, he said.

Discovered at 8 a. m.

The fire was discovered shortly after 8 o'clock by Miss Kathleen Thomas, city health nurse, who noticed smoke pouring from windows at the front of the building as she was leaving her home across the street. Miss Thomas summoned the fire department.

Chief McFarland said the fire probably started three or four hours before it was discovered and undoubtedly resulted indirectly from the extremely cold weather. An automatic sloop on the furnace kept the furnace fired heavily throughout the night with the result that the chimney became overheated, he said.

The flames had spread throughout the downstairs of the building when the firemen arrived and it was more than a half hour before firemen were able to bring the flames under control.

Treatment Room Destroyed

The most extensive damage was in the treatment room, located at the north side of the building midway from the front to the rear. This room, which was decorated only a few weeks ago, was destroyed as was a large quantity of medical supplies and costly equipment kept in the room. Among the equipment was an X-ray machine which was damaged beyond repair. Dr. Sutherland said.

Also badly damaged were the consultation room located at the northwest corner, a laboratory at the rear and another room on the south side. The only room on the first floor not gutted was a reception room at the southwest corner.

The loss is at least partially covered by insurance, Dr. Sutherland reported.

The flames did not penetrate into the second floor, where Dr.

BORAH'S DEATH IS IMMINENT

"Question of Minutes or Hours" Barkley Reports to Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Senator William E. Borah was reported at 2:46 p. m. today to be growing steadily weaker. A spokesman for the Borah household said that Dr. Worth Daniels, Borah's physician, reported the Idaho senator was "a little weaker" than he had been at noon. The report at that time was that he had no chance to survive.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Death seemed a question of "minutes and hours" today for Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, sadly, brought that word after a call on the wife of his Republican colleague. "There is not a chance," said Barkley.

An hour before, Borah's office had said he was "falling rapidly." The dean of the senate, Borah has been in a virtually continuous coma since a cerebral hemorrhage Tuesday.

The first report this morning was that Borah was "growing weaker."

The word came from his secretary, Miss Cora Rubin, one of the small band of sorrowing friends waiting in his apartment across town from the senate chamber, where the Republican leader made his historic stand against American entry into the League of Nations.

Mrs. Borah, clinging to the hope that some miracle would save her 74-year-old husband, who was stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage Tuesday morning, said she was "But the senator's physician, Dr. Worth Daniels, son of the senator."

Fire Drives Nine from Farm Home Near Crestline

Special to The Star

CRESTLINE, O., Jan. 19.—A father and mother and their seven children were driven into the early morning sub-zero weather and snow today when fire destroyed their home, leaving them only the clothing in which they fled the house.

They were the Snyder family, living five miles southeast of Crestline on the William Flinn farm.

It is believed that a defective chimney started the fire in the attic.

When the fire was discovered about 2 a. m. the top of the house was ablaze. The Crestline fire department responded to a call but members said that when they arrived the house was virtually destroyed.

The family was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Keller, neighbors, and before noon today a sympathetic neighborhood was taking a collection to buy clothing for the children and the parents.

20 Below Zero Is Lowest Mark Reported in Ohio

The weatherman made good his prediction of sub-zero temperatures in Ohio with a 20 below at Greenville.

It was the coldest since 1938 and no break is in sight before Monday, U. S. weather bureau said.

The state highway department reported snow drifting heavily in Sandusky, Lorain, Norwalk, Bucyrus, Ashland and Medina areas.

Intense cold made driving hazardous. The state highway patrol urged automobile drivers to use caution but said all roads were passable.

Drifts at Kenton

Light snow drifts were reported in the Lima, Van Wert, Kenton, Findlay, Defiance, Canton and Alliance areas.

Suburbs around Cincinnati reported unofficial readings of from 14 to 16 below. South Euclid, Cleveland suburb, reported an unofficial low of 16. Other Cleveland suburban temperatures: Maple Heights 15, Cleveland Heights 14 and Rocky River 12.

Cleveland airport reported all planes on schedule. Railroad trains were running an hour behind time.

Auto traffic was light in all Ohio cities. Drivers either left their cars at home or could not get them started.

The Ohio river and its tributaries were frozen from bank to bank.

Ohio Weather Summary

This is the way things stacked up in various localities:

Alliance—Great numbers of automobiles frozen up and traffic slowed appreciably.

Cleveland—Relief clients clamored for more coal. Post traffic lights froze. Several persons treated for exposure. Lake Erie frozen five miles out. Two families died in night clothing as heated slaves fired their houses. Today's low of 11 below, six degrees under previous record for day, set in 1935. Some unofficial suburban thermometer sank to 18 below. Live poultry enroute to market frozen to death.

Columbus—Coldest weather here since it was 16 below Jan. 22, 1939.

Cincinnati—Coldest here since Jan. 22-23, 1939, too. More automobiles in garages than on streets. Ohio river and tributaries frozen bank to bank. Millions of fields low of 12 below. Cold snapped trolley wires. Fires drove off families.

Toledo—Coldest since Feb. 9, 1934. Catholic parochial school.

Postal Employees Here Join "March of Dimes" Drive

"Wear a March of Dimes button and help fight infantile paralysis" is the slogan of the approximately 70 employees of the Marion post office who are joining with the thousands of other postal employees in the state in the 1940 organized program to collect funds to fight the disease.

Beginning Tuesday, city and rural carrier and employees at the post office will have "March of Dimes Buttons" to be exchanged for contributions of 10 cents. "Larger contributions will be acceptable also," Postmaster L. I. Lamborn said in discussing the campaign.

The goals for the local postal employees is 1,400 buttons and the "postal element" are hoping for an additional 500 buttons will be collected by the postmen and will be available at the post office.

Practically all the proceeds of the March of Dimes will go into the campaign to fight infantile paralysis. Postmaster Lamborn said. All will be sent to the National March of Dimes campaign, which will return half to the local community. Infantile paralysis is a brain disease that causes paralysis of the muscles and can result in death.

The campaign is being conducted by the National March of Dimes, which has been successful in raising millions of dollars for the fight against the disease.

Marion Boy Uses Snow To Put Out Blaze at Garage

A quick-thinking youth using handfuls of snow saved the Marion fire department a call about 10:30 last night, and probably saved a pair and a frame.

George Roest, 15, of 215 Oak street had returned from a basketball game and was putting his bicycle away when he noticed a fire. He hurried down his front porch and threw handfuls of snow through the open door of the garage. The fire was put out.

The fire was discovered about 10:30 p. m. by a neighbor. The fire department was called but the fire was put out by the boy.

The fire was caused by a defective chimney. The fire department is investigating the cause of the fire.

FOUR-YEAR LOW SET BY DROP OF 29 DEGREES

Autos, Water Pipes Frozen, Relief Calls Mount; Some Schools Close.

King Winter froze Marion in an icy grip last night and today, sending the temperature skidding down to 15 degrees below zero, the coldest here in four years.

This official low mark reported by Weather Observer E. H. Raffensperger came at about 8 a. m. today, following a night throughout which the temperature stood mostly at below zero.

The near-Arcctic weather played havoc with automobiles and water pipes throughout the city and, more seriously, added to the stress of the community's needs. Sharp increases in calls for food and fuel were noted by the relief department and Salvation Army.

The government weather bureau forecasts some relief, however, predicting slowly rising temperatures but continued cold Sunday. The weather is expected to be generally fair.

Coldest Since 1936

Today's was the coldest weather in Marion since the night of Jan. 22, 1936, when the mercury hit 18 degrees below. Coldest January night on record is 22 degrees below zero back in 1890. The coldest so far this winter, before today, was Jan. 5 when three below zero was reported. A year ago life was a little more pleasant with the thermometer ranging from 18 to 33 degrees yesterday. Highest point reached yesterday was 14 above and the lowest up to 8 a. m. today was 14 below.

At 1 p. m. today the temperature had climbed to six below zero and at 2:30 p. m. it stood at the same figure.

As Marionites woke up today, scores of them found that their automobiles wouldn't give a peep. As a result taxi and bus companies had a hard time. One taxi company said at about 9 o'clock it had turned down about 300 calls because of the tremendous rush. They were able to answer only about one out of 25. Another company said it began to be flooded with business last night and that the boom continued through the morning hours.

Many of the customers were school children and teachers, others were office workers.

Buses Kept Busy

The Marion Rapid Transit Co., although it did not have to place any extra buses in service, reported an increase in passengers. Likewise many service garages did a hard day's business. One said the calls were 400 per cent ahead of normal. Another had about 15 or 20 customers waiting for aid in getting their stalled automobiles started. At one garage storage space was packed.

Another busy office this morning was that of the Marion Water Co. where a steady stream of calls to report frozen pipes and bursted meters poured in. Officials said they expect more calls later as pipes begin to thaw and leaks are discovered. Thus far none of the company's mains have reported frozen or bursted. Likewise the city service department had no reports of breaks in the sewer lines.

The water company complaints came from residences and business places alike, especially from buildings which have no basements.

All the company's service workers were out on call this morning, restoring service as rapidly as possible.

At relief headquarters and the

The thermometer in the Marion railroad yards today recorded a trend that was not far from the truth. The thermometer showed a low of 15 below zero at 8 a. m. today, which was the coldest since 1936.

The thermometer was located in the yard at the Marion Water Co. building. It was set up by the city of Marion.

New Equipment at Palace Theater First of Its Kind Used in Ohio

Latest Type Projectors and Sound Equipment To Be Used First Time Sunday; Give Greater Brilliance on Screen and More Natural Voice Tones.

Installation of new projection and sound equipment, first of its kind in Ohio, is being completed at the Palace theater. The new equipment will be used for the first time Sunday.

The equipment and installation will cost in excess of $7,000 and will give patrons the "last word" in improvement of screen entertainment, according to Manager George E. Planck.

Two Brenkert projectors and an RCA Photophone, "The Magic Voice of the Screen," are being installed under direction of J. N. Gilman of Cincinnati, engineer in charge of equipment and sound for the Palace theaters of which the Palace is a part. E. Benham from the RCA headquarters in Camden, N. J. and L. W. Leidy, service engineer for RCA in this state.

Not more than 25 theaters in the country have the equipment, and even of those are in Hollywood, according to Mr. Gilman. The Chicago theater in Chicago, a house seating 3,300 persons, has a contract for the equipment but installation has not been started. The new Brenkerts were built on the recommendation and to the specifications of studio engineers in Hollywood who wanted theaters equipped to reproduce on the screen what they were producing in Hollywood with the finest cameras and "talkie" equipment in the world.

Seek Natural Voice Tones

"The only aim is true naturalness, not only in figures on the screen but in the voice too, as if the audience were looking on a real life scene," Mr. Gilman said. The new Brenkerts in appearance differ little from the Palace equipment they are replacing, according to Mr. Planck but the sound equipment which will be used backstage follows an entirely new design and will assure perfect sound to every seat in the theater in a tone range never before realized.

Each of the projectors weighs 1,500 pounds. They are synchronized so that at the end of each 1,000 feet of film which is a single machine's capacity, the wait-machine is switched on and the pictures run smoothly on the screen. In the old days it was at this point that a slide was flashed on the screen. One Moment Please While the Operator Changes Reels.

The new projectors replace the old ones which were installed in the theater was opened 11 years ago and calls for complete re-equipment.

The projection room at the Palace is 20 feet wide 20 feet deep and 12 feet high a roomy place, as noted by Ralph Slagle and the man Seckel.

31 Tubes in Amplifiers

On the east side of the room, 30 tubes are three new amplifiers, capable of stepping up the sound adequate for a theater fully as large as the Palace. The hold 31 tubes, each of which are 10 times more powerful than standard radio tubes and a single tube is not working. The capacity by switching on an emergency set-up of tubes can be placed immediately with effect on the picture being shown.

In the front of the booth the new Brenkerts have been installed. Each machine consists of a lamp box and the projection beam. Each lamp box has two 100-watt lamps which when the machine is started, generate an arc of 2,000,000 candlepower. A 10-inch glass reflector at the back of the box picks up the light and reflects it out of the front in a single powerful beam through a one-inch aperture and onto the one-inch square of film in the projector proper. The disc of light goes through the projector lens, three-quarters of an inch high and an inch across, and shoots out of the booth and onto the 24-foot screen.

The carbons burn rapidly and are changed about every third reel, or about every 6,000 feet of film. A pipe from each lamp box carries the carbon fumes out of the theater.

Each film carries its own sound track either variable area or variable density, according to the company which has produced the picture. The variable area track looks like broken saw teeth and the variable density track has fine lines, varying in density according to the cycles of sound to be reproduced.

The Brenkerts will take care of both types recording.

Sound Track on Film

The sound track is less than an eighth-of-an-inch wide. At the bottom of the projection machine is the sound head, through which the film passes after it has passed the projection beam. Actually, the sound track for recording is 22 scenes later than the picture projected, which accounts when films have been cut, for the fact that lips may move on the screen and no voice is heard.

In the sound head, "exciter lamps," focus light on the sound track. On the opposite side is a photoelectric cell the "bavin" of the sound machine. "Impulses" which come through the film onto the cell are reproduced as sound. The sound is carried by wires into the amplifiers and a cable carries it backstage to the speakers.

The principal refinement in the new projectors is that two shutters, one working from the bottom, the other from the top and located at the back of the machine, have replaced a cylinder formerly used adding 25 per cent more light to the picture and spreading the beam from the lamp box more evenly. Twenty-four pictures a second are thrown on the screen. A new cellular type speaker backstage replaces four "horns." The new speaker has three bass, four all-range and five high-frequency cells which catch and blend the sound, reproducing bass and treble notes in a range never before possible. Formerly speakers reproduced up to 4,000 cycles of sound and the new equipment blends up to 10,000 cycles.

Covers Range of Tones
The loudspeaker system is capable of reproducing accurately the entire range of audible sound from the merest whisper of a breeze in the trees to a mighty Niagara of sound for the screen's great climatic moments.

The new speaker gives every part of the theater a direct beam of sound. It was built especially for the Palace auditorium to cover the "flare" of the seats and to carry sound to the last row of seats in the balcony. The improved mechanism projects sound across the front of the house at such speed that it goes in equal volume throughout the auditorium.

The new equipment will give patrons a sense of depth on the screen never before possible according to the engineers. Ninety-five per cent of all

O. W. U. Instructor Tells Kiwanians U. S. Determined To Stay at Peace

The fact that America's sympathies are with the Allies in the present European war does not necessarily weaken our determination to keep this nation out of the conflict, Dr. Ben Arneson, head of the political science department at Ohio Wesleyan university, declared here yesterday.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Marion Kiwanis club at Hotel Marion, Dr. Arneson pointed out that polls of public opinion show that "an overwhelming majority of the American people want the Allies to win but that same group also says, 'We want to stay out of their war.'"

"It would appear that these two trends in public opinion are in conflict with each other but we must remember that it is almost impossible to remain neutral so far as public opinion is concerned," he said.

Reasons for U. S. Sympathies

"In the first place, in this war two democracies, one the home of the Magna Charta and the other a nation which became a republic almost simultaneously with United States, are pitted against a group of dictatorships which have acquired an astonishing record of injustices in the few years of their existence. In the second place, United States has been impregnated with British and French propaganda for generations.

"We remember the terrible things of the last war and we're determined that it can not happen again despite how the war finally ends. One of the most encouraging signs is that only a short time ago the American Legion, through its national leaders, spoke definitely against entering the war."

"In the last war the slogan was, 'Make the World Safe for Democracy,' but it would be better to say now, 'Let's keep a continent of democracy here instead of going to Europe to save democracy for a tiny island.' I believe it is our business to stay home and look after our own democracy."

Reviews Last 25 Years

Referring to the twenty-fifth anniversary of Kiwanis International which is being observed this week, Dr. Arneson said: "It has been a pretty wild 25 years since Kiwanis was organized in the throes of the first World War, but Kiwanis has also grown strong, maintained its high ideals and established a record of outstanding achievement. But as we celebrate the silver anniversary of Kiwanis we should consider the fact that Canada, one of the two great nations comprising Kiwanis, is already at war. And we should resolve, more than ever before, that the United States must remain at peace."

CULTURE OF SOUL TOPIC OF SERMON

"Science of Soul Culture" was the subject of a sermon by Rev. J. B. Holloway of Ironton, evangelist, at last night's revival service at Trinity Baptist church.

"Jesus made it His chief business to find men as they were and lead them back to God," he said. "worthy of careful study and emulation, the speaker pointed out that Jesus' approach to different individuals varies according to their temperament and particular needs. He seeks for a natural point of contact in the physical realm and turns it to symbolize some spiritual truth. His next step, the evangelist said, is to arouse interest and kindle a desire in the mind of the person with whom He is dealing, to awaken his torpid conscience and make him aware of his spiritual need."

Tonight will be observed as Sunday school night.

SENATE QUESTIONS RUSSIAN RELATIONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The question of severing diplomatic relations with Russia boomed up again today as Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee asked the state department whether it wished to comment on a proposal by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.)

Vandenberg proposed that the senate call upon President Roosevelt to inform it whether the Soviet government had lived up to promises made in 1933. These promises formed the basis for American recognition of the Soviet regime.

The senate, saddened by the grave illness of its dean, Senator Borah (R-Idaho), scheduled a meeting today to transact little except routine business.

No Compromise

PRESENCE of Frank Gannett's hat in the presidential ring is a sign to both parties that political publicists will have no dull moments from now on. They will need to keep their typewriters unlimbered for action with the highly articulate Mr. Gannett in the field. He has distinguished himself as a hard fighter—one of a small group of unbelievers who have not been cowed or disheartened by the tremendous blasting power of the New Deal publicity organization. In his battle against court reorganization and to a lesser extent against reorganization of the executive department, Mr. Gannett performed like a Finnish soldier on patrol against a Russian division—he hit with everything he had, and it was enough. His political position, aside from the technicalities of party maneuvering in New York state, is one of no compromise with New Deal principles. Both parties will feel the impact of his dynamic personality on presidential politics in 1936.

Final Account of a Fine Record

FROM the report of the last year of service performed by the late Sherman L. Anderson as agricultural agent for Marion county there has been assembled material for a series of interesting articles now appearing in The Star. The report is typical of the thoroughness and efficiency which characterized Mr. Anderson's fulfillment of duty and provides evidence of how valuable his work was to farmers and the community as a whole. Duties of the farm agent's office are many and can be handled adequately only by one who knows farming from a scientific as well as a practical standpoint. To be fully successful, and that of course means meeting all requirements of the office, he must be untiring in his attention to the problems of farmers both as a group and as individuals. Mr. Anderson measured up to these standards in every respect and consequently left a notable record of accomplishment in Marion county. His final report may fittingly be preserved as a memorial of this service so ably and conscientiously performed.

Louisiana's Ripe

LOUISIANA politics is in a class by itself, like Maryland fried chicken, California sunshine and Washington apples. This lends to a tentative conclusion, which is that Louisiana's ripe for reform and soon will get it. There's an axiom in politics that corruption moves in cycles. Government goes from bad to worse, which is what happens to it most of the time, and when it has exhausted possibilities of corruption suddenly becomes better. After that, of course, it goes from bad to worse again. In this week's Louisiana election there was not, as far as press reports can be trusted, any ray of hope in the situation. That is to say, no one even bothered to pretend it was a battle to uphold virtue against the forces of evil. The boys were out to slug and steal victory. Competition was so ruthless it was a plain case of dog eat dog. This sort of thing quickly wears itself out. There's no profit in it. The time is ripe for a whooping big reform movement such as transformed Cincinnati from the most corrupt city in the country to one of the best governed. Shades of Huey Long and his heirs and rivals to the contrary, Louisiana is due for reform. It can go no further in the direction it has been going.

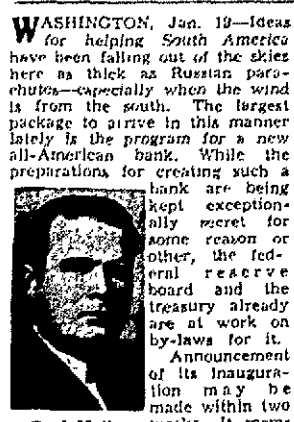

More Than a Subtle Difference

CONGRESSIONAL cold shouldering of proposed government aid for Finland, favored by President Roosevelt, reflects the broad public policy embodied in the neutrality act. The United States is willing to make sacrifices to keep itself out of Europe's newest war—sacrifices of feeling as well as war profit. Its sympathies are with Finland, which has been marked for a victim by Russia, clearly the aggressor. But its sympathies, according to present indications of congressional opinion, will not be permitted to run contrary to its policy of maintaining neutrality. There is more than a subtle difference between showing sympathy, even to the extent of raising money through private organizations for relief of Finns, and advancing government credits formally to a nation at war. One is humanitarianism, the other is a political commitment. If congress continues to proceed with the utmost caution in matters which entail foreign entanglements, it will be closer to the sentiment of the people than those who seem eager to let emotion dictate their judgment in this ticklish case. NONE TOO COMFORTABLE From the war zone comes word that the front is cold and quiet. How about the feet?—Philadelphia Bulletin. SOUND BASE NEEDED A person is fortunate to have an open mind—if it isn't open at the bottom.—Olin Miller, Thomaston (Ga.) Times.

News Behind the News

Plans To Help South America Expected To Include New All-American Bank.

By PAUL MALLON

Paul Mallon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—Ideas for helping South America have been falling out of the skies here as thick as Russian parachutes—especially when the wind is from the south. The largest package to arrive in this manner lately is the program for a new all-American bank. While the preparations for creating such a bank are being kept exceptionally secret for some reason or other, the federal reserve board and the treasury already are at work on by-laws for it. Announcement of its inauguration may be made within two weeks. It seems to be strictly a Latin notion of what an "All-American" bank should be. That is, capital will be contributed on basis of population, and the United States has about one-half the population of the Americas. It will put up half the money (capitalization suggested is $100,000,000). No suggestion has yet been made that Uncle Sam get one-half the benefits of the institution, which apparently is designed primarily to finance industrialization of Latin countries. If the bank furnished funds to start a mining venture in Mexico, for instance, it would be in effect financing competition with American mining industries. This is true also of proposed steel mills, and other industrial activities. The agents of the FRB and treasury are trying to work out the by-laws to make sure Uncle Sam does not become Uncle Sep.

United States would buy the Mexican production at the market price (some reports say 5 cents more). The Mexicans also want the same preferred treatment for oil which has been granted to Venezuela.

Few if any of these recommendations are likely to be adopted. The treasury has denied insistently, for instance, that a new Mexican silver agreement is in the making. However, the incidents suggest again that the good neighbor policy is going to be expensive.

Candidacy Mr. Roosevelt may not have recognized publicly that there is a Democratic presidential race going on, but he knows Senator Wheeler is running. He dropped a word about Wheeler's candidacy to a caller this week who was conversing with him about another matter.

The comment as the caller remembered it was substantially this: Burt always seemed to me to be a very wise man, until I read in the papers where he is becoming the C.I.O. candidate. Doesn't he know that is not the way to get elected?

Note—The only sure election recipe any politician knows around here is to let Mr. Roosevelt. He had one half million dollars worth of C.I.O. backing in 1936.

CCC Choice While House winds are whirling (a draft from the President's office, in fact) that Mr. Roosevelt has been trying to get Ed McGrady as new head of the civilian conservation corps, McGrady formerly was Miss Perkins' right-hand man in the labor department, and is now with the Radio Corporation of America. He would succeed the late Robert Fechner.

Tax Increase A special check of senate attitude on the $460,000,000 Roosevelt tax increase suggestion was made at the President's request by one of his favorite senators, Jimmie Byrnes of South Carolina. The senator reported there was not a chance in the world of getting it through.

The recommendation, however, is not dead yet. House leader, Sam Rayburn, has been talking it up favorably on his side.

Wealth No Handicap

Millionaires Not Uncommon in Public Service.

JAMES H. R. CROMWELL

He's In The Biggest Show On Earth

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—Can we help it if the nomination of James H. R. Cromwell as minister to Canada reminds us that there are more than several millionaires in the government? They have trooped in by ones and twos for a fling in the biggest show on earth. Some never get out of the chorus and others don't get past the tryout stage before being put out on the sidewalk. A few of the disgruntled have indicated they would jolly well wait until another administration came in where their true talents would be recognized. We don't know just how wealthy young Cromwell is, although he has enough private jack for ordinary purposes. But Mrs. Doris Duke Cromwell, his wife, has an enormous fortune, bequeathed by her tobacco king father. In 1925, this amounted to $53,000,000, but the depression shrank it somewhat. Washington notes that such possessions are not a handicap in politics. While we are on the diplomatic front we might mention that the term millionaire is usually applied to Joseph P. Kennedy at London, William Bullitt at Paris and Joseph E. Davies, formerly of Brussels and now in the state department. To Davies' own considerable wealth was added the breakfast food fortune of Mrs. Emily Post Hutton Davies, when they were married a few years back.

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle carried part of the Philadelphia Biddle fortune to Poland when he went there as minister and presumably got it out when the Germans moved in. Francis Biddle, another of the Philadelphia family, served on the U. S. circuit court until he was moved to the solicitor-generalship these past few days.

Probably the richest man of all in the government is Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator. In Washington he is considered one of the wealthiest men in the U. S. John Hanes, recently retired from the treasury under-secretaryship, augmented an underwear manufacturing fortune by a fling in cotton and stocks before he came to Washington.

John D. Biggers, president of the lobby-OwenFord class interests, had a turn here directing the unemployment survey and S. Clay Williams, who runs R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company headed NRA for a time.

Charles Edison, secretary of the navy, still is tops in the vast Edison enterprises. Major Gerald Lambert, of a St. Louis pharmaceutical company, was a dollar-a-year man for a year with Federal Housing. Mairner S. Eccles of Ogden, Utah, had to divest himself of control of a large banking and timber fortune before he could become chairman of the Federal Reserve system.

Edward J. Noble, assistant secretary of commerce, preceded his entry into government by making a fortune out of packaged mint candy.

Younger Generation, Too

All the wealth of the Indies is represented in various boards formed to give the government a life. The business advisory council has 60 members, most of whom are in the Business Who's Who ranks. They get no pay and don't even charge the government for travel expense.

Incidentally, there are some rich men's sons getting a dash of training in the raw environs of government. Phillip D. Young, son of Owen D. Young, is doing a job in the treasury, while William Bati, son of a wealthy Philadelphia, is in the commerce department.

Loans for Finland Not Regarded as Placing U. S. in Position of a Belligerent.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE President has assured congress that an extension of credit to Finland "at this time does not in any way constitute or threaten any so-called involvement in European wars" and, since congress alone can make credit available, congress must decide whether it agrees with the President's assurance.

It is plain that what the President and the great majority of congress are considering is involvement in a substantial sense as participants in the European wars, and not whether the United States should or could be impartial and indifferent toward Finland's struggle.

Walter Lippmann

Leaders of both parties and the great mass of people everywhere have already taken a position of active sympathy for, and open support of, Finland's cause. They were pleased, I believe, when the President accepted the interest payment on the Finnish debt with the understanding that it would somehow be returned to the Finns.

There has been no demand from responsible leaders of congress that the neutrality act be put into effect against Finland. There has been a widespread agitation for rupture of diplomatic relations with Russia.

U. S. Opinion

There has been no objection to the informal embargo against Russian military supplies. There has been no objection to the action facilitating Finnish purchase of Brewster airplanes. There was general approval of the first credit of ten millions extended by the Export-Import Bank.

And throughout the country, in all the churches, with the open support of governors, mayors and public officials, Mr. Hoover has been raising money for the Finnish people and denouncing in unqualified terms the criminal character of Stalin's aggression.

So, if to be neutral means to be impartial and indifferent, then neither the people nor the government have been neutral. If an additional credit is to be refused to Finland on the ground that this would infringe a technical and impartial neutrality, then the actions of the last six weeks need to be undone lest by our own confession Russia be given a claim for damages.

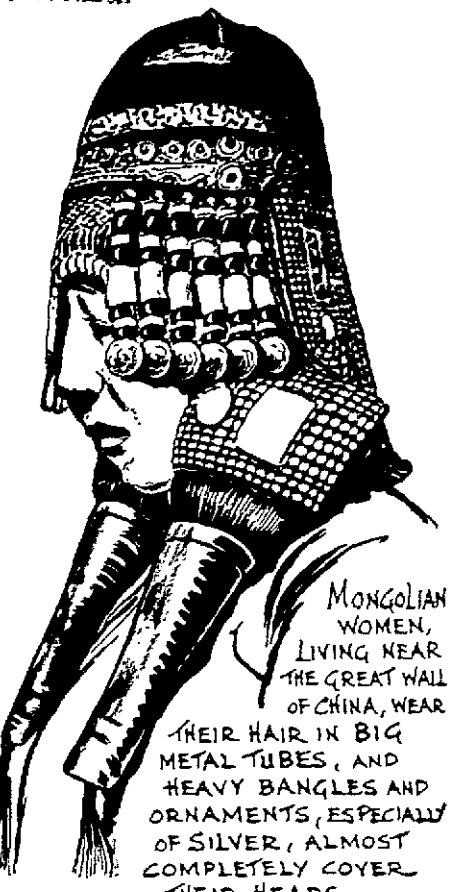

Actually, of course, the American people are not concerned with the shadows but with the substance, and what they have decided upon as their policy is not neutrality in the technical sense but non-participation as belligerents.

Pittman Act

The Pittman Act is not based on principles of technical neutrality. The Pittman Act is a practical device for staying out of the war, just that and no more, and our entire experience under the act indicates that the device is effective.

So when congress considers the extension of an additional credit to Finland, the question is not whether such a credit is technically neutral but whether it does anything substantial to commit the country to participation in the European wars. My own conviction is that in so far as a credit has any bearing on the chances of American involvement, it will tend to reduce the chances. If the Russians break through

"This Is Your City"

On the theory that the more taxpayers know about what's done with their money the more enthusiastic they will be, Schenck, N. Y., has adopted a new method of distributing the city's annual report. A copy is given out with every tax receipt.

About 8,000 copies of the 1933 report were given out in this way, says International City Managers' association. In addition about 1,500 copies were mailed to representative citizens and 500 were put into school libraries, where pupils use them for study of local government and for reference.

The report was followed up with an exhibit of municipal activities. Employees were stationed at booths showing how the city tests milk, operates its two-way police radio and some of its fire equipment. Their job was to answer questions—to make municipal services understandable to the taxpayer.

Our Old Man

"Never Call a Poker Hand on Your Wife's Say-So"—A Tale of Poker Jake, with No Moral.

By DAMON RUNYON

OUR old man was the only customer in Arkansas Hall beer saloon one evening in our old home town of Pueblo, so he was talking to the bartender. The bartender said meant no offense, but was getting tired of standing back of that bar listening to our old man's moralize to others. He asked our old man if he couldn't tell some good stories.

Our old man said he was afraid he didn't know many stories without some moral attached connected with them. He said maybe the bartender would be interested in hearing about Poker Jake, the only story he could think of at the moment that had no moral. The bartender said all right, what about Poker Jake?

Our old man said Poker Jake was the greatest poker player in Pueblo in his day. He specialized in stud poker and used to sit in a big game that was carried on in the back-room of a cigar store on Santa Fe ave.

Our old man said frequently that when the cards were all dealt out and another player would make a sizeable bet at Jake, he would request time to make a decision as to whether or not he would call the bet. Then he would absent himself from the room for long periods of time, leaving his cards on the table.

Then he would either promptly call or throw in his hand. Our old man said that in ten cases out of 10 Jake's judgment would be sound so he took it upon himself to investigate. He found that Jake always went to his bedroom which was nearby and consulted his wife about the situation that had developed. He had a good memory for cards and would take a deck and show her just how the cards lay in front of each player and how they had graduated their bets as each card was dealt.

Our old man said Mrs. Jake would then interrogate him closely as to how the various players acted in making their bets, especially the one making the bet in which Jake was in doubt about calling. Our old man said Mrs. Jake was a great student of psychology and often something the player said or did, as reported by Jake, would dictate her advice to her husband.

Our old man said one night there appeared in the game a tall, good looking fellow named Herbert, who had not been in town long and who had become rather unpopular on short acquaintance. He seemed to have plenty of money but proved a cautious player. Our old man said Jake took an instinctive dislike to Herbert and did his best to win his money from Herbert very cagey.

Our old man said that finally Jake and Herbert came to grips in a big pot and after all the cards were dealt, Herbert pushed his money he had in front of him into the center of the table. It amounted to three thousand dollars and Jake called for time out. He went home and told Mrs. Jake all about the play up to the moment Herbert made his big bet.

The way the cards lay, each had an ace, king, queen and jack in sight but Jake had a king in the hole and as to two other kings at another ace had showed among the card dealt the other players before they fell out of the pot, Herbert would have to have the case in the hole to beat Jake, and he had not been playing his cards as if he had that case, Jake figured him for a queen or a jack in the hole and so did everybody else.

Our old man said that after Jake had explained the layout to Mrs. Jake she asked him how Herbert had acted. He said he remembered that Herbert had wiped his chin with his hand twice after he made his bet and she asked Jake which hand, Jake said the right hand and she told him to hurry back and get Herbert's bet which Jake did. Then Herbert turned over the case ace and raked in the money.

He quit the game and the next day Herbert left town with Mrs. Jake and our old man said it caused talk when it came out that they had been sweethearts in Kansas City years before and that she had staked Herbert with Jake's own money to play against her husband and had framed a set of signals with Herbert so she would know when he had cinch cards and could tell Jake to call. Wiping his chin twice with his right hand was the main signal.

Our old man said that was one of the few stories he knew that had no moral and the bartender said oh yes it did. He said the moral was never call a hand on your wife's say-so.

A Real No. 1 Citizen

By The Associated Press

UNION CITY, Okla.—When Dr. D. P. Richardson takes a vacation, the town of Union City, population 500, virtually closes up shop until he returns.

For you might say Dr. Richardson is Union City and that its residents are just members of his family.

Since 1894, he has been the only doctor in town, the only dentist, president of the only bank, the only druggist, the postmaster and a leading retail business man.

And, to top it off, he operates three farms and is interested in a cotton gin.

In his 45 years of medical practice, Dr. Richardson has delivered 2,500 babies, estimates he was on hand for the arrival of half the present population of Union City.

Just out of medical school, he came here with 10 cents in his pocket and ideas about making money.

He saved his earnings and when the local druggist died he acquired the business. Later he bought a controlling interest in the bank.

In 1914, he was appointed postmaster. He has served as president of the Oklahoma State Bankers' association, and in 1938 was appointed State Banking Commissioner. When he was a year later with a change in political administration he declared he was glad because he really couldn't spare the time away from Union City.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

Although Ohioans read with pleasure the novels of English life by Charles Dickens, it was with disgust that they read the account of his trip through Ohio in 1842.

Writing of his impressions as he rode in an uncomfortable stage coach from Cincinnati through Lebanon, Xenia and Springfield to Columbus, he used such phrases as "half-drunk loafers," "dirty, sullen and taciturn," and "winning landlords."

However, his description in humorous vein of some of the characters he saw as vivid as any in his books. In a single instance he departed from his sarcastic treatment for a paragraph of praise when he wrote: "Our way lies through a beautiful country richly cultivated and luxuriant in its promise of abundant harvest. The farms are neatly kept and save for a few differences, one might be traveling just now in Kent."

1939 Was Banner Year for 4-H Clubs, Report of County Farm Agent Shows

632 Boys and Girls Handled 722 Projects in Busiest Club Year in County's History.

Following is the last in a series of stories based on information in the annual report of activities at the office of the Marion county agricultural agent.

Marion county had its biggest 4-H club year in history in 1939, according to the last annual report of the late S. L. Anderson, county agricultural agent.

There were 632 boys and girls enrolled, an increase of approximately 80 per cent over the 351 members in 1934, the first year of organized 4-H work here. In 1938 there were 529 enrolled.

The boys numbered 287 and the girls 425 at the start. When the year was over 180 boys and 350 girls had finished their projects.

The clubbers started 722 projects and completed 587 of them, a fair average.

32 Clubs Last Year

The detailed report of club work shows a variety of information, such as the fact that 463 of the young people live on farms and 169 in villages, that there were 32 clubs last year, that 30 boys and 92 girls were enrolled in vocational agriculture or home economics work in addition to their club activities.

It also showed that the club members earned $543.03 from exhibits at the county fair, that five tours were made and that 41 members and advisors attended camp outings.

The various projects carried on show the wide range of activities available to 4-H club members. The figures in the following list are the number of projects started:

Agricultural engineering, 4; beef breeding, 1; steer feeding, 18; corn growing, 17; hybrid corn comparisons, 21; dairy calves, 13; dairy heifers, 12; dairy cows, 11; flower gardening, 30; forestry, 42; nature, 5; pig projects, 41; potatoes, 15; poultry, 23; rabbits, 11; sheep, 44; vegetable gardening, 22; clothing, 348; home furnishings, 13; nutrition, 58; bees, 1; soy beans, 3.

Have Local Leaders

In addition to the supervision of the county agent's office, the clubs benefited from the direction of local leaders who numbered 32, including 12 men and 20 women.

The ages of 4-H members ranged from 10 to 20 and over, with most of the members in the lower age groups. Of the 632 who started the year, 603 were still in school. Of the total enrolled, eight boys and 24 girls had been in the club work six years or more. For 98 boys and 180 girls the year was their first in the work.

Woman Composer Wins a Belated Reward for Work

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19.—Ida Reed, 79-year-old backwoods composer who wrote more than 200 hymns but received little more than a pittance for them has won the recognition and aid of some of the nation's best known musicians.

Miss Reed, who lives alone in a little farmhouse near Philippi, W. Va., has been granted a weekly "bonus" by the American Society of composers, authors and publishers for a "substantial contribution to American music."

Although some of Miss Reed's hymns have been translated and sung in many parts of the world, few brought her more than $1 or $2 from publishers of religious music. She sold them outright without copyrights or royalties.

Her plight was called to the attention of the Composers' Society by Richard D. Marks, Clarksburg, W. Va. theater owner.

William J. O'Brien, district manager of the society, arranged the weekly check for Miss Reed, explaining that a society rule provides that anyone who creates worthwhile music shall not want for the necessities of life.

Among the best known of Miss Reed's hymns are "I Belong to the King," "Somebody's Praying for You," and "Guide Thou My Stars." The last hymn which she wrote was "So Near."

Her first hymn was published when she was 23 years old. She worked as a school teacher in her youth but illness forced her to give up her job and a plan to study at college.

She settled down at home and bought an organ when she describes as "a great blessing" in her work as a hymn writer.

"Many of my songs have sung themselves to me while I was playing some melody," she said, adding that was the way she got the inspiration for "I Belong to the King," her favorite.

She treasures letters praising her songs from residents of many lands and is the proudest of one which she said she received from Lady Ann Grenfell, wife of Sir Wilfred Grenfell, in 1932.

Olina Informs Madge She Wishes Role of Harpist in Her Play.

SOMETHING in my voice—I think it was an involuntary thing of contempt—roweled Princess Olina cruelly, and her head went up in quick defiance.

"Perhaps I can do more than you think," she said.

"But I do not think you will, if you are sensible," said Olina. "I overheard you correctly, you wish Mr. Verizen to grant you some special favor. Mary already has told me that you also wished to ask me something concerning my play. Am I right in deducing that the two requests are connected in some way?"

Her reply was honest but grudging.

"Yes, you are," she said sullenly. "Is it something which I could aid or hinder, according to what I wished to do?"

"I suppose you could," she said, then added a bit unpleasantly: "I should think Mr. Verizen would have complete control over his productions, but Mary seemed to think your consent would be necessary for this particular thing."

What Does Olina Want?

"Mary is usually right," I told her, "so perhaps you would better tell me what it is you want—that is, if you really want it sufficiently to comply with my conditions, should I find that I have the power to comply with your request."

Her head went up again quickly, and her eyes were startled.

"What conditions?" she asked.

"I may not have to state them," I said coolly. "I may find that it is impossible to grant your request, and therefore it would be useless to bargain with you. So tell me first what you wish of me and then I will talk to you."

She frowned, bit her lip, tapped her foot, while I had a smile at a remembrance of Harry Underwood's description of a temperamental prima donna "going through the motions." Then she leaned forward with an air of resolution.

Garnet

(Birthstone for January)

Garnet is really the name of a group of related silicate minerals—nearly every color except blue—and all are singly refractive. Garnets have different compositions which affect the color—the most important to the jeweler are "Bohemian" or "Pyrope" (Greek for fire-like)—a red, brownish-red or red-brown stone found principally in Bohemia. Some are found elsewhere—especially in the U. S.

"Almandine" is often purplish red—but also runs to various reddish and brownish shades. The principal sources are Burma and Ceylon though Almandine occurs everywhere (often opaque). Sometimes showing stars (4 rays and 8 rays). Reddish Garnet briocheons are often called "Carbuncles."

"Demantoid" is a green garnet approximating the emerald in shade. This variety is softer, but more brilliant and has more "fire" than the diamond.

GARNER URGED TO RUN IN OHIO

Wants Vice President
Try for State's 52
Delegates.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, Jan. 19.—Ohio Governor Charles F. Bricker today urged Vice President Charles McNary to put his name on the ticket for the state's 52 delegates to the national Democratic convention.

Bricker said McNary was the only man in the country who could give the Democrats a real chance of winning the White House.

McNary, who is now in Washington, D. C., is a former governor of Oregon and a member of the U. S. Senate.

Bricker said McNary was the only man in the country who could give the Democrats a real chance of winning the White House.

Another possible Democratic candidate, Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, told reporters that he would not file papers in Montana for renomination to the Senate.

Wheeler was not expected to be for president in the Ohio primary.

The third term question was raised again yesterday in a statement by Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago that the Illinois delegation would be unanimously for Roosevelt whether he wants it or not. Illinois has 58 votes in the convention.

While their parents are engaged in schools Saturday afternoon boys of the Sons of Veterans of Foreign Wars will be seen on a tour of the Marion State Hotel and the Hardin Hotel and museum.

The tour was arranged in cooperation with the educational committee of the Marion County Chamber of Commerce.

Entertainment for Boys

Sunday night, while their parents are at the military ball, the boys will have the opportunity of attending the Ohio theater at a minimum admission charge, through arrangements made with Manager J. J. Huebner.

Sunday morning the boys will have services in the city churches. To provide further for the boys' entertainment while in the city, arrangements have been made to keep the boys at the Ohio Sunday to that they may enjoy use of the gymnasium and other facilities. Their business session will be conducted Sunday afternoon.

Scoffs at Fear War Is Threat To Civilization

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Does the European upheaval really threaten to destroy civilization as we hear so frequently? That question arose the other night around the dinner table of a group of newsmen. One asked if I subscribed to this terrifying view—and got a quick retort in the negative.

Maybe it was a bit too quick, though I still believe civilization isn't on its way out but is just in process of getting rid of an ugly streak of rascals.

This horrid prophecy about the end is a favorite with great personages, and little persons, in many countries. It crops up constantly. As a matter of fact I read it again in the current news just before rushing off to my typewriter to record this column.

Term Often Used

One frequently notes the employment in Europe of this nightmarish phrase, "the end of civilization," for the apparent purpose of frightening a public into acceptance of some policy. Sometimes the expression is just tossed out to add color to a speech. Never yet has the writer seen any justification offered in support of this prophecy.

After all, just what is the gauge of the progress of society which we call civilization? Is it a stream-lined motorcar or a horse-drawn wagon? Is it the "long torso" or the old wasp-waist and bustle or the drapery of the gal of ancient Greece? You please tell me, but don't say that "civilization" hasn't been knocking about for a very long time.

It's easy to imagine the people of the day of Alexander the Great saying: "This man is going to break civilization wide open." But I have stood in the 4,000-year-old (so they say) square of Philadelphia, where doubtless Alexander played as a lad, and seen the peasants engaged in the tranquil pursuit of the very civilization which those who viewed with alarm feared would fall many years ago.

Perhaps Genghis Khan, or even the great Napoleon, didn't provide much uplift for civilization, but they didn't end it. The present conflict won't finish it, either. It probably will upset human perspectives, and it undoubtedly will retard progress, but the intellectual development of countless centuries can't be wiped out overnight.

War is a throwback to barbarism, but the tendency to resort to this wholly unjustifiable method of settling disputes, or acquiring territory, is a thing which has afflicted civilization through thousands of years. It's a tragedy that we must go through this horror again, but when the purge is over, we shall and I have paid for it, we shall hand on to our children a much brighter and cleaner life than the world has known before.

bassador to Mexico, gave her little encouragement.

In Deep Coma

The "Lion of Idaho" lay in a deep coma, his head hot with fever. Two special nurses were on duty day and night, and Dr. Daniels called every few hours.

Old friends were let quietly into the apartment to tell Mrs. Borah of their sympathy and their hope that the senate dean would revive within minutes the muffled telephone rang. Once, yesterday, it was President Roosevelt calling to voice his anxiety at the veteran Republican's illness. Again it was Senator Glass of Virginia, who opposed Borah as vigorously in the League of Nations as the President did in recent years on the court reorganization and arms embargo repeal issues.

Felt Well Tuesday

Senator Borah had been feeling unusually well when he arose Tuesday morning. As he passed Mrs. Borah's room on his way to the bath he stopped and told her his jubilation that he had been to a physician for a general checkup and had been told he was in fine shape. She dressed and waited breakfast for him. When he failed to appear, Mrs. Borah called to him and then went to the bath and found him lying there.

Whether he slipped and fell as he stepped out of the shower and suffered the cerebral hemorrhage in the fall, or whether the hemorrhage struck him down first, was not apparent.

R. A. F. FLIERS STRIKE AT GERMAN BASES

Attack Comes 25 Years After First World War Raids.

By The Associated Press
LONDON, Jan. 19.—Advices to the effect that the royal air force had struck again at German North sea bases reached London today—25 years to the day since the first German Zeppelins dived in from the North sea to bomb England in the World war.

However, the air ministry said it had no information to confirm dispatches from London, Denmark, indicating that raids were carried out last night against the German seaplane base, the island of Sylt, and possibly the naval base of Helgoland, another North sea island.

Meanwhile, in maritime warfare, a German submarine was blamed for the loss of the British mine tanker Inverdun, 9,458 tons, which went down in flames off the southwest English coast Tuesday. The entire crew of 45 or 46 was believed to have perished.

It was only with a statement by the owners last night that details of the sinking became known. The mine tanker had not been identified and the crew was reported to have escaped.

The cargo of an Italian steamer, the 4,27-ton Premuda, was saved today when the vessel was refloated from Godwin sands and safely beached. She had run aground after colliding with a lightship Tuesday night.

From the home front, Scotland Yard's sabotage squad solved into the cause of explosions which took five lives and injured 30 persons yesterday at a munitions plant near London. Indicating possible sabotage was a report that authorities had been tipped several days ago that "accidents might happen" in the plant.

OHIO WEATHER

remained open as public schools closed.

Salem—Coldest in five years. Ice-coated firemen battled blizzards which destroyed the Oriental Gardens, a restaurant and night club. Fire Chief Vincent Malloy thrown from roof when it collapsed, but escaped without injuries. Damage $5,000.

Port Clinton—Fruit growers expressed belief trees were not damaged.

Fremont—Public and parochial schools closed. High school basketball game postponed.

The bitter cold which swept in from the Canadian northwest has advanced from the Rockies to the Appalachian region. Little relief was expected until next week.

Grain dealers feared damage to winter wheat and rye. Livestock, and fruit and vegetable crops in Texas were periled by snow, ice, and sub-freezing temperatures that extended from the Panhandle to the coast. Many midwestern schools were closed.

Fires Increase

The intense cold was blamed for many fires as householders added fuel to over taxed stoves. Scales of winter clothing and fuel increased. Consumption of electricity and gas spurted. Public transportation facilities in Chicago were strained as thousands of motorists, bothered with balky motors, took to the buses and trains. Nine persons were injured there last night when two elevated trains collided.

Whitefish Bay, Wis., police said it was so cold there that stray dogs disappeared from the streets. The temperature in near-by Milwaukee early today was 15 below zero.

Hobart Walls, 29, a barefoot hitchhiker was treated for frozen hands and feet at Bedford, Ind. He was found seeking shelter in a hollow log. Two exposure deaths were reported in Indiana.

James Whitley, 21, a Charlevoix, Mich., hunter, crawled for two miles through snow and sub-zero cold after breaking an ankle. In Detroit the mercury sank low zero for the first time since 1936.

Ice Blocks River

Pittsburgh suffered its coldest weather of the season. It was 2 below zero at 2 a. m. A five-mile long ice gorge carried threats of a flood. At Philadelphia engineers were concerned over the worst ice gorges in 40 years in the Schuylkill river.

Heavy ice floes halted operations of Ohio river ferryboats at Owensboro, Ky. U. S. engineers warned tow-boats and other river craft to seek shelter immediately.

Some of the nation's coldest spots yesterday were Devils Lake, N. D., 28 below zero, Denver 23 below, Duluth, Minn., and Madison, Wis., 22 below, Minneapolis 20 below, St. Paul 21 below, Des Moines and Omaha 17 below, Chicago 14 below.

Officers who arrested Mrs. Anderson said she was eastbound on Center street and that her car struck a parked auto owned by Dr. Clovis Altmaier of 424 South Prospect street. The front section of the Anderson car and the right rear section of Dr. Altmaier's car were damaged, police reported.

CHANGE IN SCHOOL PROPOSED BY JUDGES

Would Make Training Center at Lancaster.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 19.—The Ohio Juvenile Judges' association looked today to Saint Harold Hays of the state boys' industrial school at Lancaster for his reaction to their proposal to make the school a penal institution and more of a vocational training center.

Hays, scheduled to address the judges' annual convention today, said the plan had "some merit." He became superintendent of the school last Dec. 1.

The judges approved a special committee report urging that "the school name be changed to 'state school for vocational education'; boys be 'enrolled' instead of 'committed'; juveniles be forbidden to send boys directly to the school but that errant youths between 12 and 21 years old be placed with the state bureau of juvenile research.

The bureau would assume full jurisdiction over the boys and decide correction methods.

The judges first passed and then tabled a resolution asking the legislature to give additional salaries of $1,500 a year for juvenile judges who also hear juvenile cases. It was decided instead to name a committee to draft a sliding scale of salary increases.

While the judges debated the issue of young law breakers, Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood sent out to do something for the "forgotten" men and women at the other end of the state's penal ladder.

Saying that life timers "will be given a new incentive to improve themselves and keep out of trouble as prisoners," Sherwood announced that he would recommend a law revision to make men eligible for pardon or commutation hearings after they had served 15 years.

Salvation Army the cold weather brought extra calls for help, chiefly for food and fuel. Frank S. Burns, city relief director, said he planned to ask for an increase in his staff to handle extra work.

Many of the calls, he said, are new cases, people usually on WPA projects which have shut down because of the cold.

Captain Rothwell Slickley of the Salvation Army also noticed an increase of calls from WPA workers who have not been able to earn money because of closing projects. The Army last night housed 14 persons, mostly transients. The requests for help, the captain said, are considerably more numerous than usual.

Canada Rows Over CONDUCT OF WAR

Prime Minister Promises Reply to Ontario Criticism.

By The Associated Press
OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—Ontario's provincial legislature, which last night condemned the Canadian government's conduct of the war, was promised today a reply from Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King in the Dominion parliament which opens next Thursday.

Reopening his criticism of the Dominion government, Premier Mitchell Hepburn at Toronto yesterday rushed through the liberal-dominated legislature a motion censuring the "little effort" made in the war.

Hepburn threatened to resign if the motion did not carry and it passed, 44 to 10.

Buckeye Brewing Co. Establishes District Branch Headquarters Here

Building Remodeled and Equipped at Cost of $25,000 To Be Distributing Point for Dozen Counties.

The Buckeye Brewing Co. of Toledo will open a branch in Marion Monday at 185 North Main street in rooms that have been remodeled into a storage house from which some 400 beer permit holders throughout Marion and a dozen nearby counties will be supplied with the company's beer.

The Marion branch, being opened at a cost which the company states will reach $25,000, will include refrigerated storage space for some 250 barrels of beer and hundreds of cases of bottled beer. Garage facilities for some of the trucks which will make regular trips to nearby towns also will be housed in the branch, and the front of the building will be used as an office.

Raymond A. Turpin, who moved to Marion early this year to open the branch, will be manager. He said the Marion branch is the first formed by the company, which hitherto has centered its operations in the Toledo area.

Dinner Meetings Set
Arrangements for a series of dinner meetings for beer permit holders to acquaint them with the company's product and service are being made by the Marion branch, which was announced by Mr. Turpin. The first will be held Monday night at Hotel Marion for permit holders and their guests from Marion and the immediate vicinity. Others will be held at the Elks club in Kenton on Tuesday, the Midway restaurant in Upper Sandusky on Wednesday, the Elks club at Galion on Thursday and the Moose Lodge in Delaware on Monday, Jan. 29. Public officials and business leaders are being invited. H. W. Lancashire of Toledo, vice president and general manager of the Buckeye Brewing Co., will be the principal speaker. Mr. Turpin will serve a toastmaster at all of the dinner meetings.

Lease Taken
The company has taken a long-term lease on its branch quarters here, formerly occupied by the Borchert market. The building has been remodeled throughout and provides two floors and basement space for use as storage. Construction of partitions and installation of a large mechanical refrigeration unit to keep the barrel beer at temperatures ranging from 38 to 42 degrees has been under way for the last several weeks.

Clarence E. Jacobs of 708 Davis street and Clyde D. Martin of 227 West Church street have been employed as truck drivers. Another will be added next week and others may be employed as needed, Mr. Turpin said. The company's schedule calls for daily service for the 50 permit holders in Marion and at least three trips a week to establishments of other permit holders throughout the area to be served.

Area To Be Covered
The Marion branch territory extends as far west as Kenton, south to Delaware, east to Crestline and north to Upper Sandusky. Joining the southern part of the territory served out of Toledo are communities between these points and the Bellefontaine and Indian Lake regions will be served from Marion.

The Buckeye Brewing Co., Mr. Turpin said, has one of the largest breweries in Ohio, employing nearly 1,000 persons. It is in its hundredth year of operation. It features Kraeusel brewed beer and has only one product, sold under only one label. Mr. Turpin is making his home in Marion at the Lido apartments. He and Mrs. Turpin and their three children moved here from Andover, Mass., where he had been engaged in sales promotion and survey work for several breweries in New England states. Prior to that he was employed in promotional and merchandising work for the Crowell Publishing Co. and Scripps-Howard newspapers.

Marion was chosen for the company's first branch because of its geographical location, being a logical center from which to serve an extensive trade area.

Blood Runs Cold

By Ann Demarest

"Hello," I said and my voice was little more than a whisper. A man's voice asked if Joan was there.

I looked at the woman questioningly and motioned towards the dressing table. "Is that Joan?"

"Yes, Joan Kent," she said in a harsh voice.

I turned back to the telephone. "No, this isn't Miss Kent. No, you can't speak to her. She's not here. There's been an accident. She is."

He seemed to realize finally that she was dead.

"Who is calling?" I asked, suddenly coming to my senses.

The only answer was a click when the man hung up the receiver. The woman spoke abruptly as I stood there staring at the telephone.

"We must call Mr. Kimball—not that he'll do any good, but the police must be notified."

"Yes, of course," I said calmly as I could.

"I might have known," she went on, glancing towards the dressing table, "that after such goings-on in this house it would end up in murder. It's no place for a respectable woman to live, and just wait until my husband hears of this."

She looked at me sharply. "When did you move in?"

"I swallowed. 'Last night.'"

"When?" She asked in a flat voice and at last it came to me that she was hard of hearing. "Last night."

I moved unsteadily towards the doorway. She was right. Someone had to tell Mr. Kimball. My legs felt weak but when I got out in the hall I sat down hastily on the top step. The woman bent over me to call down the stairs. There was no answer. The door was open leading from the hall into the shop. I crept down a few steps, but the shop seemed to be empty.

I turned back to the woman. "There is no one in there," I said.

"Where's that?" she said more to herself than to me. "I suppose he's mixed up in this, too. There isn't a person in this house I'd trust out of sight."

The Police

You'd have thought the house was peopled with murderers to hear her go on. Then the street door of the shop opened and we could hear brisk steps across the floor.

"Hello, Miss Howarth. I hope your apartment is warmer this morning. Puttuck turned up in disgrace at the crack of dawn."

Then he saw the woman at the head of the stairs. "Why, good morning, Mrs. Evans."

Surely he must sense that something was wrong. I started down the stairway towards him. It seemed a long while before I could move my lips to speak.

"You'd better do something, get someone. Your niece—something has happened," I mumbled uncertainly.

He stared up at me. "To Joan? Why—what?"

Without waiting for an answer he hurried past me on the stairs. When he reached the hall Mrs. Evans pointed to the girl's apartment and he stepped inside the room.

I stood there leaning against the banister while he was in that room looking at the girl. After a long moment Mr. Kimball backed out of the room, his face drawn and white. And then he saw the maid, now stirring, and his eyes turned wildly to Mrs. Evans.

"Sarah!" he gasped. "What's the matter with her?"

"She's fainted, that's all," I told him quickly as I came up the stairs.

He leaned back against the wall, pressing his hands on it for support. "Where—" he choked. "Who found her?"

Mrs. Evans looked at him. "You know who did this," she said, without raising her voice.

He seemed not to hear her and, turning his eyes full on me, he asked again who found his niece.

"The maid, I think."

"A few minutes ago. I heard her scream and—"

"You'd better call a doctor," Mrs. Evans interrupted sharply.

"It's time something was done around here,"

"Yes, of course," Mr. Kimball straightened his thin shoulders, stared down at Sarah again and walked uncertainly towards the stairway.

"And the police," Mrs. Evans added callously.

He turned around to me again. "Do you know anything about this, Miss Howarth? Did you hear anything?" His mouth was twisted and his eyes shone queerly.

I shook my head.

He started down the stairs. "I'll call the police," he said lifelessly. And then the maid got to her feet and clung to the banister, murmuring.

"Hush," I said to Sarah. "Stop that."

She stared at us, her bony red hands pressed to her mouth. "He wasn't in his room last night," she whispered.

"What was that?" Mrs. Evans stepped closer.

"I said he wasn't in his room all night."

"Who wasn't?" I asked.

"Mr. MacDonald, and him and her was as thick as flax, and that Mary Ann was hanging around all the time, too."

The Cigarette Lighter

Then Sarah looked at me. "Who are you, anyway?" Without waiting for me to answer, she started to walk again.

I took her by her thin arms and shook her. "You must stop this," I said sternly.

"Oh, God, it's awful," she said. "She was murdered right there where she sat, here in this very house." She buried her face in her apron. "And Miss Joan such a pretty girl," she sobbed.

Mrs. Evans started up the stairway to the third floor. "Handsome as a handsome does," she snapped looking down at us. "I knew this would happen. And I know who did it."

Sarah stared up at her. "Who?"

"Never your mind. I know. My husband warned me."

The maid's head dropped and there was terror in her pale blue eyes as she turned and ran screaming down the stairs. Mrs. Evans disappeared in the third floor hall and from somewhere upstairs came the sound of a dog's shrill bark.

"Nineteen George Street," I told myself, "is a madhouse."

What in heaven's name had Mrs. Evans said that would give Sarah such a fright?

I stared after the flying figure of the girl. She ran into the shop and I could hear her talking excitedly to Mr. Kimball, but I couldn't catch a word of it. Finally he quieted her somehow, because she came into the lower hall and disappeared.

The house was quiet—a dead silence—and I wondered where the rest of the inmates were keeping themselves. Then the street door slammed and I could hear loud talking, men's voices. The doctor or the police had evidently arrived.

I went back to my own apartment. It seemed strange that the room hadn't changed. So much had happened since I had awakened. The bedclothes were rumpled, just as I had thrown them off when I heard Sarah scream. It seemed as though I'd been up for hours, yet when I looked at my watch it was only half-past nine.

I felt a little unsteady and awfully cold. And for the first time I was conscious that I'd been running around in bright yellow pajamas and a pink bathrobe with my hair falling down over my shoulders. No wonder the maid was hysterical.

Just inside of the door I kicked something with the toe of my slipper that shot across the floor and under the bed. I got down on all-fours and crawled under to fish it out. This time I did think of fingerprints, because I was pretty sure it wasn't mine, so I picked it up gingerly with my handkerchief, backed out and took it to the window to get a good light on it. A silver cigarette lighter, and on one side there was a monogram: "A. J. W." I repeated the initials to myself, but they didn't mean a thing, so I laid it on the chest of drawers beside my own lighter.

It was still cold. I had run out without closing the windows, so I brushed the snow off the sills, trying not to think of the snow on the floor in the other apartment. Even though the girl was dead it seemed awful to leave her there by the window with the cold wind blowing in. My knees got shaky whenever I thought of her.

John Barton as "Jeeter Lester" in "Tobacco Road."

Jeeter Lester will steal Lov's sack of turnips for the third time from the stage of the Palace theater when "Tobacco Road," Jack Kirkland's world-famous drama, is presented Saturday for a matinee and night performances.

Once more the five tons of Georgia earth which are "trouped" from city to city in huge wooden boxes will be dumped on the stage to add realism to the back country atmosphere. The scene shows the tumble-down house of the Leesters, the well-worn, the chintz-covered and the sagging fence facing out on a tobacco road.

Although the advance sale for the engagement has been excellent, Manager George Planck announced today that seats are still available for both performances.

The company recently played its seventh engagement in Columbus, and its seventh in Cincinnati and will come here from a third engagement in Zanesville. Sunday the show will go to Cleveland to open Sunday night at the Hanna for its sixth week in that city.

The company is on a non-stop two-year farewell tour of the country. On Broadway the play is in its seventh consecutive year, breaking all former records. While Marion will be the 27th city in 41 states in which it will have been presented and the 120th in which it will have played a return engagement of from one night to seven weeks.

The company is largely the same one that came here a year ago. John Barton who has now given more than 1,000 portrayals of old Jeeter Lester, the share-cropper, will head the Marion company. Sara Perry will return as Ada, the wife and other familiar players will be Dick Lee, Lillian Ardell, Sheila Brent, Eugenia Wilson and Ayers. Pitt Herbert, who played Duke Lester on the first appearance of the play, has rejoined the company. Newcomers this season are Mary Perry as Sister Bessie, the evangelist, Edgar Hinton as Lov Benney the coal chute worker, and David Houtman as Captain Tim.

An appropriately painted fabric cover to be placed over the legs of a card table to convert it into a children's playhouse has been invented by a Connecticut man.

Harding - Bucyrus and Irish - Crestline Games Top Tonight's Heavy Card

Schedule Will Be Among Season's Biggest, If Weather Permits.

BARRING the possibility that the sub-zero temperatures dished out by old man weather may result in the postponement of conflicts, tonight's round of schoolboy cage games in this section will be one of the season's heaviest.

Marion Harding winds up the first half of the North Central Ohio conference schedule by entertaining Bucyrus at the Marion Steam Shovel gymnasium. A junior varsity preliminary at 7 p. m. will match the joint holders of the league runner-up place.

Marion St. Mary cagers are poised for a road jump to Crestline tonight where current supremacy of the League of Six Nations hinges on the outcome. Both clubs have unblemished loop records after two victories. The Saints return home to engage an unbeaten Forest High team from Hardin county tomorrow night.

County Schedule

Tonight the pacemaking county league teams, Pleasant Township and Claridon, will center their attention on stacking the eighth contest on top of their victory columns. Pleasant's visit to Caledonia looms as the highlight in the county race, since the hosts occupy third place with a five-two record. Claridon visits Kirkpatrick in what appears to be a breather for the invaders.

Except for Harding's fight to stay in the top division of the NCO this week's league games are of little import. Mt. Vernon is the top heavy favorite to annex another circuit win at Gallon, while Ashland is expected to have little trouble providing plenty of entertainment for Shelby's Whippets.

Games On Tap

Tonight's schedule for the city, county and district teams follows: Marion Harding vs. Bucyrus at M. S. S. 7 p. m. Marion St. Mary at Crestline. Marion county league—Pleasant

Five Young Men With But a Single Thought

The five stars of Missouri's up and coming basketball team are pictured in the unusual photograph above, massed for an attack on a lone ball. Left to right with the reaching hands are: Haskell Tison, center; Capt. John Lobsiger, considered one of the best guards in the Big Six; Arch Watson, forward; Martin Nash, guard; and William Harvey, forward. The Tigers are coached by George Edwards.

Vernon dropped the reserve duel, 24-16, being unable to get back in the running after facing a 0-2 deficit at halftime. Summaries:

Delaware Horse Seen As Threat in Hambletonian

A Delaware owned horse, Milestone, 2:10, the property of Joe Neville, is considered among the foremost threats of nine Ohio trotters eligible for next summer's premier harness racing event, the Hambletonian at Goshen, N. Y. Ohio horsemen are presenting a greater challenge than any other state in the sport's top racing event.

Hugh M. (Doc) Parrish of Urbana is training and driving Gentleman Jim, 2:05½, owned by John F. Davis of Toledo, and considered among the leading candidates for the year. Eligibility payments of $250 each also have been made on seven other Ohio-owned trotters. A total of 47 horses are eligible for the Hambletonian.

According to a California scientist the speed of lightning is 22,000,000 miles an hour, about 10,000 times the velocity of sound.

Georgia Tech probably will abandon winter football drills in favor of a mid-April start.

Five Years a Pro

Later he graduated to the professional ranks and with 17 years in this end of the sport comes to the midwest as a fairly steeping, clean and scientific wrestler. He doesn't sport a garb, because he feels "People think you're trying to show off if you wear a 10-gallon hat and rather sell myself on my wrestling merits."

Hager battled to a draw against George Hartay of Hungary in last week's prelim and comes Monday to face a sturdy local westerner, Andy Tremaine, Phoenix.

A 20-minute curtain-raiser will begin at 8:30 as a prelim to main events.

Armstrong, Set for Life Financially, Plans To Quit After 3 More Fights

By SID FEDER
Associated Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—Despite the innumerable "leaches" and "bites" put on Henry Armstrong's bankroll by the less fortunate members of the fight fraternity, the little Negro fighter has no exact idea of just where he stands financially. He has spent his spare time in the last two and a half years writing his biography, "The Glory Road," but he's going to hold up its publication until he has hung up the gloves.

Although his annuities will return him about $100 a week, even if not another nickel is paid toward them, the great little Negro fighter has no exact idea of just where he stands financially. He has spent his spare time in the last two and a half years writing his biography, "The Glory Road," but he's going to hold up its publication until he has hung up the gloves.

Ralph's Quintet To Bid for Chunk of Title Sunday

Assurance of at least a share in the Sunday league cage title is the plum Ralph's Snappy Service quintet will be reaching for, when the circuit's seventh round of dueling is staged Sunday afternoon at the Army court.

The Service team, engages Waldo K. of P., winner of only one of four starts, and by winning can make sure of finishing no lower than a tie for first place.

With only two games remaining on their schedule and a first place lead of a full game, Ralph's would need to drop both tilts to be shoved out of first place.

Sunday's program starts at 1:30 with Co. D, 166th Infantry playing Midway Restaurant. Ralph's vs. Waldo is carded for 2:45 and in the 4 p. m. final, Earl Darty pairs against Marion K. of C.

CLAY BRYANT WON'T SIGN WITH CUBS

By The Associated Press
ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 19.—Clay Bryant said today he had returned his unsigned 1940 contract to the Chicago Cubs.

"The contract called for a cut bigger than the raise I received in 1939," Bryant said at his winter home north of here.

Still tanned from a recent 17-day stay at Hot Springs where he worked out kinks in the pitching arm that troubled him last season, Bryant declared he may visit owner P. K. Wrigley at Chicago to discuss terms.

Bryant won 19 games for the pennant-winning Cubs in 1938, but arm ailment kept him on the bench during most of the past season.

Papers on the "Life of Clara Barton" by Mrs. C. C. Heck and "Life of Elizabeth Fry" by Mrs. C. G. Laird were read at a meeting of the fortnightly club Thursday at the home of Mrs. C. C. Heck.

The Kiwanis club entertained 36 boys of Carey High School football squad with dinner at the Pilgrim House with entire attendance 79. Three Kiwanians from Marion and two from Upper Sandusky were guests. Coach Bloss of Carey high introduced Coach H. Lamb of Ohio Northern university, who gave an address. He stressed the four great benefits of football, health, courage, teamwork and discipline.

The Wonder Guild of the Lutheran church met Wednesday at the parish house. Mrs. William Pontius was in charge and Mrs. C. C. Heck gave the devotionals. A tureen supper was served.

The past matrons of the Eastern Stars held their regular meeting in the Masonic today. It was followed by a tureen supper.
